

INI/ICMS Correspondents Day Report

27 - 28 January, 2021

A virtual Correspondents Day, hosted by ICMS was held on Wednesday 27 and Thursday 28 January. The event included a presentation by Alison Etheridge, Chair EPSRC's Advisory Group on Additional Funding on plans for the "new maths money", the additional £300 million allocated to UK Mathematical Sciences. David Abrahams and Paul Glendinning gave presentations on INI and ICMS' planned additional activities given the uplift in funding. The Wednesday closed with a social session in GatherTown. On the Thursday break out groups discussed issues such as knowledge exchange, public engagement, equality and diversity, and how INI and ICMS should support the mathematical sciences community in supporting the people pipeline. The meeting closed with a wrap up session where groups reported back to the whole meeting.

There were 38 registered participants:

David Abrahams, INI
Hamid Alemi Ardakani, University of Exeter
Julio Andrade, University of Exeter
Silvia Barbina, The Open University
Alex Bartel, University of Glasgow
Tomasz Brzezinski, Swansea University
Andrew Burbanks, University of Portsmouth
Priscilla Canizares Martinez, Schlumberger
Edmund Chadwick, University of Salford
Miroslav Chlebik, University of Sussex
Peter Clarkson, University of Kent
George Constable, University of York
Daniel Elton, Lancaster University
Paul Glendinning, ICMS
Victor Goryunov, University of Liverpool
Michael Grinfeld, University of Strathclyde
Richard Hibbs, OR Society
Alexander Holroyd, Bristol
Chris Howls, University of Southampton
Ostap Hryniv, Durham University

Sophie Huczynska, University of St Andrews
Gandalf Lechner, IoP Math-Phys. Group
William Lee, University of Huddersfield
Carol McLaughlin, Operational Research Society
Christie Marr, INI
Vanessa Miemietz, University of East Anglia
Anatoly Neishtadt, Loughborough University
Frank Neumann, University of Leicester
Emilian Parau, UEA
Ulrich Pennig, Cardiff University
Alexey Sevastyanov, University of Aberdeen
Primoz Skraba, QMUL
Alessandro Sisto, Heriot-Watt University
Igor Smolyarenko, Brunel University London
Jan van den Heuvel, LSE
Jane Walker, ICMS
Sarah Verth, UKRI
Martin Widmer, Royal Holloway

